Motorists with October Registrations Reminded of Deadline

SPRINGFIELD — Illinois' newly designed license plates are now being distributed to passenger car owners who have registrations expiring in October, Secretary of State Jesse White said today. New, smaller renewal stickers designed to accommodate the new design plates also are being issued to B-truck owners who have registrations expiring in October.

New design plates are being issued based on the renewal month. All passenger plates will be distributed by July 2002, while B-trucks and all other plate categories will receive new plates in 2003.

White said motorists can purchase the new plates and stickers online at www.cyberdriveillinois.com, by using the "TouchTone Renewal" system, or by visiting a Driver Services facility.

It is now too late to mail applications and guarantee delivery of new plates and stickers before the Oct. 31 expiration date. Anyone driving a vehicle on or after Nov. 1 with an expired October 2001 sticker will be subject to a $75 fine for improper registration.

Illinois motorists, by law, have the right to retain their current letter and number combinations on their new design plates. If a motorist chooses to retain the number, he or she will be given a 120-day Temporary Renewal Sticker to affix to the old license plate until the new plates are manufactured and delivered to the motorist.

If a motorist does not care to retain his or her current letter and number combination on the new plates, random-number plates are available immediately over the counter at 116 Driver Services facilities. Those facilities also issue renewal stickers for B-trucks.

Temporary Renewal Stickers issued when ordering new design plates and B-truck renewal stickers for 2002 also are available at about 2,500 financial institutions statewide for a slight additional fee.

Pre-printed renewal applications have been mailed to 664,993 passenger car and B-truck owners who renew their registrations in October.
