White Awards $3.4 Million In LSTA Grants To Libraries, Library Systems & Museums

SPRINGFIELD—Secretary of State and State Librarian Jesse White has awarded FY07 Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA) grants totaling $3.4 million to nearly 500 libraries, library systems and museums containing libraries in Illinois.

“LSTA funds encourage our libraries to be creative and innovative,” White said. “Illinois librarians work hard to identify specific local needs and use these funds to address those needs. Over the years LSTA grants have produced hundreds of new programs in our state's more than 4,000 libraries, regional library systems and museums.

“Our librarians are always looking to the future, and looking for new ways to serve our patrons. LSTA grants help provide our libraries with some of the financial resources they need to remain our state's most reliable sources of information.”

White said this year's LSTA grants were awarded in six categories:

- Bridging the Gap Between Community and Collection--This grant is intended to “bridge the gap” between the needs of a specific audience within the library community and the library's non-fiction materials collection. Applicants identify a specific group of patrons or students whose needs are not being met by the library's materials. The applicant recommends a solution to address the need by developing an effective non-fiction collection, and an activity to promote the new materials to the identified target audience.
- Bring in a Trainer— This grant is intended to help libraries deal with new and continuous challenges. With the help of a trainer, library staff, boards of trustees, faculty, patrons or students will learn more about library related topics and issues to better serve patrons.
- Digital Imaging-- Digital Imaging grants allow libraries to create Internet-ready electronic versions of their materials and collections, specifically Illinois-related historical and cultural materials. Types of materials that may be digitized include archival materials, manuscripts, diaries, personal journals; photos and film; handwritten musical scores, maps, posters, drawings, and prints; sound recordings such as oral histories and tapes; and historic newspapers.
- Emerging Technologies and Methodologies—These grants are intended for the research, development and implementation of new methods and strategies to enhance the quality of library activities, programs and services for library patrons in the applicant's community. Applicants are encouraged to embrace emerging technologies and incorporate innovative methods to address the diverse needs of library patrons.

- Demonstration of Public Library Services-- Demonstration projects expand or create the public library's boundaries and services. The grant is designed to encourage the expansion of public library services to new areas. A demonstration must culminate in a referenda question for tax support.
- Developing a Statewide Technology Toolkit-- Regional library systems are encouraged to collaborate and cooperate on a statewide initiative to enhance library services using new technologies such as blogs, RSS, Wikis and instant messaging. Together, the regional library systems will focus on research and development, testing and training that will have an impact statewide. Systems will work with teams of pilot project libraries to introduce new technologies into Illinois libraries. These teams will create templates that can be replicated statewide, and develop standard policies that can be duplicated by any library in Illinois.

LSTA funding is awarded to states by the federal Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS). The Illinois State Library administers LSTA funding awarded to the state of Illinois each year, and issues grants to applicants who seek funding as part of a competitive grant program. LSTA grants are available for the development of projects that specifically provide and focus on library service, new initiatives and library activities. All types of libraries—academic, public, school and special—and regional library systems and museums with libraries are eligible for funding.

(A list of this year's recipients is attached.)

Emerging Technologies & Methodologies

Libraries face a world of new and changing demographics and patron needs. The Emerging Technologies & Methodologies offering is intended for the research, development and implementation of new methods and strategies to enhance the quality of library activities, programs and services for library patrons in the applicant's community.

The following thirty-eight projects were awarded funding for a total of $1,296,340 with the desired outcomes that:

- Patrons will report high satisfaction with library services and programs accessed using technology.
- Patrons will make informed decisions as their information and programming needs are met in new and innovative ways.

Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights Memorial Library

$29,920.00

The Arlington Heights Memorial Library will utilize this grant for an initiative entitled "Main Streaming", to enable them to begin offering podcasts and Vlogs on their our library website. By using such developing technologies, they will be able to encourage patrons to use the website regularly, reach the homebound, appeal to those in tune with new technologies, educate the uninitiated in the use of new technologies, provide outreach, alert patrons to library services and programs, provide timely information, and show programs held and recorded onsite. Welcoming daily messages, a poetry corner, interesting factoids, and story times are a few of the things the library hopes to offer.

Beach Park

Beach Park Community Consolidated School District #3

$84,000.00

The Amazing Race will whisk you around the world to visit different modern day cultures. It will provide training open to a wide community on creating inter-disciplinary units where math and reading are taught along with everyday life skills such as those involved in planning trips. Books, AV, and kits will be purchased for different continents containing recipes, costumes, or musical instruments. Video-conferencing and other modern communication tools will be used to explore different cultures and relate them to our own. A world celebration day will be held, showcasing the materials and what students have learned.

E-books can be easily accessed on any computer with Internet access, both at home and at school, so that library materials are accessible at all times, even when the library itself is not open. Also, by providing access to information sources in this new technological format of e-books, evolving technology is integrated into classroom teaching and learning. The ultimate goal is increased student achievement.

Champaign

Lincoln Trail Libraries System

$73,000.00

Statewide efforts provide written materials and interpretation services for communicating with non-English speaking library patrons, giving Illinois libraries new capabilities to reach out to the linguistically diverse populations they serve. This project will enhance current interpretation services and enable Illinois libraries to have access to a wide selection of downloadable audio messages in the languages spoken by Illinois residents. Multilingual audio messages will give the library a voice in the diverse linguistic communities they serve, describe available library services and increase awareness of statewide interpretation services. These messages can be accessed through library web sites, and used as in-library welcome messages or orientation presentations for non-English speaking patrons.

Champaign

Champaign Public Library

$100,000.00

software, cameras and microphones will allow live and recorded instruction on information literacy, database search strategies and various other library related topics to be directly integrated into distance learning classes for undergraduate and graduate nursing students and for our pharmacy students when they are in clinical rotations off campus.

Other valuable online resources such as the National Geographic Index, Library of Congress, News on the Net, and powerful search engines will also be incorporated into the lesson plans via hands-on exercises and mini-research papers. It is our goal that every one of our students be at least exposed to the previously mentioned online reference/research tools available to them and be able to determine a specific term and or problem and then utilize the proper Internet tool and find an answer to their question.

Gridley Gridley Public Library District

Gridley is a small community of about 1,200 people. The library also serves about 1,300 people from the surrounding rural area. Our goal is to serve all the people in our library district, no matter what age or economic level. We have a very successful summer reading program for our children. We also have varied adult programs which are very well attended. We would like to extend our programming with a big screen TV, DVD player, DVDs, padded folding chairs and a stand for the TV. This would help us reach even more of the individuals in our library district.

Hazel Crest Grande Prairie Public Library District
$5,000.00

Dream Tales will recruit volunteers to read bedtime stories and provide homework assistance to children in homeless shelters. Volunteers will receive training from PADS, the homeless network and learn methods used in story hours and homework assistance. The shelters operate at a different location each night. Grant funds will be used to develop bags that can be carried by the volunteers to each PADS location. Bags will include books and materials geared to a wide age range. Grande Prairie and thirteen other south suburban libraries will share responsibility for volunteer assignments within each library's service area.

Johnsburg Johnsburg Public Library District
$8,567.00

This project will research/develop links between popular legal media downloading/content services and library reserves/streaming services to meet changing user needs. In a study that primarily benefits academic library users across the state/nation, while capitalizing on a developing peer-2-peer project at ISU, researchers will examine options for common searchable languages, access issues, streaming capabilities, password protections, and vendor adaptability. Investigators will compare/contrast the suitability of existing services such as iCommons, Ruckus on Reserve, and cLabs/cVillage for compatibility with course required media, with links directly to classroom management softwares/pages.

Norridge Ridgewood Community High School District #234

$24,800.00

To highlight the adaptability of literature to technology, this project brings the diverse populations of Norridge and Harwood Heights together through intergenerational reading, film viewing, and televised and virtual discussions. We will purchase and circulate copies of books which have been made into films, show the films at the public library, and critically examine both. Discussions will be filmed and streamed from a dedicated web site which will also house a virtual discussion blog. The project will culminate with an author in residence whose book has been optioned for, or made into a film.

Olney East Richland Community Unit School District #1

$9,000.00

This project targets approximately 700 young adults. The partner for this grant is the local public library. The grant allows the high school library to set up blogs, which enables the librarian to inform students of materials available and activities at the public library and high school library. Students are able to respond to blogs. After software is installed on the high school library computers, students can compose online book reviews. Because of blogging and reviews, students can participate more and be better informed about materials and activities in the local libraries.

Quincy Blessing Health Professions

$12,000.00

Podcasting Comes to Quincy! will allow John Wood Community College, Quincy University and Blessing-Rieman College of Nursing to jointly meet one of the technology needs of our expanding nursing population. Our students lead complicated lives with many responsibilities. With that in mind, our libraries have redesigned web pages and invested in electronic books and databases to meet their information needs, no matter the location. We would like to extend these initiatives into the new areas of podcasting and blogs. Linking podcasts and blogs to our websites would allow students to listen to faculty lectures, information literacy presentations, tutorials and library programming.

Richton Richton Park Public Library District

$17,600.00

Katherine Dunham. August Wilson. Mahalia Jackson. Robert Johnson. The link between this group of people is clear - African Americans in the Arts. Studies by the National Endowment of the Arts conclude that the arts create a "tangible, positive impact upon the nature and quality of our communities and citizenry". The Richton Park Public Library District proposes to create a project called the Community of Arts: A Black Cultural Expression Collection that would encompass all the arts and in a variety of formats. This collection would not only be available to the patrons of the Richton Park community, but to all the communities of the Chicagoland area.

Springfield Lincoln Public Library

$58,500.00

Lincoln Library will establish a College Assistance Program to improve college attendance rates among low and minority students in Springfield. The CAP center will provide information on college and/or financial aid to students and parents through individual counseling, online resources and reference materials. Workshops and programs on selecting the right college, financial planning for college, and choosing a career will be offered to students and parents. CAP will be promoted to all of the local high schools. A brochure of relevant information will be provided to each CAP recipient.

Sterling Newman Central Catholic High School

$5,000.00

Research, once a process requiring stacks of books, piles of note cards, and typewriters with corrector ribbons, can now be accomplished using a computer with word processing, online access and a printer. No librarian advocates a school library without books. But at Newman Central Catholic High School, where the library currently houses only about 5,800 volumes, students require more quality resources that can be accessed and used outside the physical walls of their library. The purpose of this grant is to provide those resources, enabling students to increase their competencies and excel academically.

Stillman Valley

Meridian Community Unit School District #223

$65,674.00

"Breathing Life Into History!" will bring history alive for the students of this rural district. The regional history museum will bring an outreach program to MCUSD and will assist staff in identifying methods and strategies that enhance library activities and programs. Four units, aligned to Illinois Learning Standards will be presented to students bringing the museum to the library. Each unit will culminate with a community event at the library hosted by MVMC, showcasing the new resources and student presentations that will be posted on web pages. Web links between the museum, libraries and districts will be designed.

Wheeling

North Suburban Library System

$60,900.00

What's the Buzz? project partners the North Suburban Library System with the DuPage Library System. Inspired by OCLC research findings of the "Perceptions of Libraries and Information Resources" report and an ILSDO survey, this project provides training of library staff in the concept of buzz marketing, assistance in developing a customized buzz marketing plan for each participating library and seed money to implement newly-created plans. Conference presentations, articles and activities on emerging strategies and techniques are the dissemination vehicles for this project.

Woodstock

Woodstock Community Unit School District #200

$23,000.00

The goal of the project is to help library patrons understand and use the library's electronic resources through a series of training programs. One of the programs will be to train public and private school teachers on the electronic resources and how to integrate those resources into their instructional practices. The second training program will be for public and private school parents to enable them to use the electronic resources in order to provide better assistance to their children.

Digital Imaging

Digital Imaging grants allow libraries to create Internet-ready electronic versions of their materials and collections, specifically Illinois-related historical and cultural materials. Digital Imaging grants assist libraries in developing successful digital imaging projects and provide greater access to collections. This grant cycle has an emphasis on materials related to Local History, but proposals for projects in all subject areas were considered based on the demonstrated need as documented in the grant proposal.

The following twenty-three projects were awarded funding for a total of $388,990 with the desired outcomes that:

- Illinois citizens' access to Illinois related historical and cultural material in a digital format is increased.
- Illinois citizens recognize the value of digitized Local History materials including newspapers.

Barrington

Barrington Public Library District

$7,550.00

The Barrington Area Library proposes to digitize fifteen years of historical property tax records from Cuba Township in Lake County, Illinois in its grant proposal titled, "Tax Roll Round-Up." These valuable records will be digitized, transcribed and searchable online for easy accessibility. Genealogists and other researchers will use these records for tracing people as they moved around the country and for supplementing the 1890 federal Census, which was destroyed by fire. The library plans to make these original documents accessible to people researching the Barrington area.

Champaign

The Board of Trustees of the University of Illinois

$20,000.00

The Illinois State Geological Survey Library desires to continue and expand the ongoing development of the Illinois Historical Aerial Photography Digital Archive project to include five additional Illinois counties. The ISL and the ISGS have established themselves in a leadership role within the state for the creation of a permanent digital archive of Illinois' oldest statewide aerial photography. Acquired by the USDA during the 1930s, this aerial photography represents the most detailed record of the state's cultural and physical resources as they appeared 70 years ago. Unfortunately, the nearly 34,000 original film negatives for this Illinois aerial photography were destroyed by the National Archives. The best remaining collection of contact photographic paper prints made from these negatives was transferred to the Illinois State Library from the IDNR Office of Water Resources. In order to ensure the permanence of this collection, it is desirable to digitize the prints as a mode of providing broader access.

Champaign

Illinois Fire Service Institute

$20,500.00

This project aims to collect, organize, digitize and preserve materials that document the ultimate sacrifice of more than 700 Illinois firefighters over the past 150 years. The Illinois Fire Service Institute Library will partner with fire organizations, historical societies, and libraries to digitize photographs, newspapers, and other resources that detail these tragedies for inclusion in an online database. Providing access to this history will memorialize the firefighters, increase awareness of their sacrifice, and supply contemporary firefighters with valuable "lessons learned" from the various deaths.

Charleston

Eastern Illinois University

$20,000.00

The Journal of the Illinois State Historical Society is the professional publication of the Illinois State Historical Society. The Journal is a valuable resource tool for educators, scholars, historians and anyone interested in Illinois history. The Journal offers articles on Illinois and regional library history from pre-white settlement through the 21st century. Another feature of the Journal is its collection of book reviews about Illinois and its annual "Lincolniana" issue. This project will digitize 12,000 pages of the Journal, covering issues published from 1980 to 2004. A value added component of the project is the Journal will place many of the images in Illinois Digital Archives (IDA) within their historical context.

Chicago

Pullman State Historic Site

$19,530.00

Digitizing historic images, plans and maps of the factories, structures and equipment can educate future generations about the development of the regional transportation and heavy industries of communities such as South Chicago, South Deering, Riverdale, the East Side, Roseland, Pullman and Hegewisch. The industrial structures of this region are almost gone, but a wealth of information remains. We propose to create an archive and online virtual museum of more than 2000 images to commemorate the industries and workers of these communities and to celebrate their contributions.

Chicago Northwestern University Medical School

$20,154.00

2009 will mark the sesquicentennial of the Northwestern University Medical School. To honor the medical school, the Galter Library proposes digitizing the 1979 history of the school (copyright owned by the University), to emphasize the role it has played in the history of Chicago, Illinois, and medicine. The project includes photographs, historical text on Chicago, architecture, and biographical information. It will appeal to medical historians, local historians, genealogists, medical educators, architectural historians and the general public.

Chicago Illinois Institute of Technology

$9,625.00

The goal of Voices of the Holocaust is to provide online access to the remarkable first person accounts of Holocaust survivors gathered by Dr. David Boder, an IIT professor of psychology, shortly after prisoners were liberated from the concentration camps. These intense narratives are incredible; however, it is also possible that these interviews are the first oral histories ever recorded. Although there is interest in this historically significant material worldwide, the site is still under construction. Due to lack of funding, only 16 of 71 recorded interviews are presently available online. The remaining 55 recordings require the expert attention of a qualified sound engineer before they can be mounted on the site. The ultimate goal of Galvin Library is to create a searchable, multimedia web site where the actual voices of all 71 survivors will be available through audio streaming; a rich learning tool that enables scholars, students, and the public to navigate through translations of the interviews and hear the voices of the survivors.

Chicago Center for Research Libraries

$20,215.00

The project will convert two Illinois ethnic newspapers from microform to digital and make the digital versions available online to the citizens of the state through Illinois public libraries and CRL's website. The publication years to be digitized and made web accessible for both publications predate copyright restrictions and are public domain resources. Some of the conversion processes from microform to digital will be provided by iArchives, a leader in newspaper digitization, and the finished product will be mounted on CRL's website in ContentDM format and delivered to the Illinois State Library in the library's host software of choice.

Chicago Field Museum of Natural History

$19,542.00

This project will create replacement quality digital replicas of 1,000 original glass negatives made circa 1895 to 1919 and show panoramic views of the Field Columbian Museum, Jackson Park and Hyde Park in Chicago; Chicago Sanitary and Ship Canal construction; Field Museum founder Harlow N. Higginbotham's Joliet estate "Harlowarden"; Palos Park area flora and fauna; and Edward Hines Lumber Company located on Chicago's north side.

Chicago University of Illinois at Chicago

$20,127.00

UIC's Richard Daley Library includes the records of many important settlement houses in Chicago including Jane Addams' Hull-House. This project will digitize approximately 500 photographs of activities at Hull-House, Marcy-Newberry Center, Bethlehem-Howell Neighborhood Service, Firman House, the Off-the-Street Club, and the Hyde Park Neighborhood Club from the late 19th through the mid 20th centuries. The images capture the history of the neighborhoods, including social customs, urban conditions, and demographics. This visual record of Chicago engages students at all levels, researchers, and the general public interested in social history. Funding covers staff to identify representative photographs, create metadata, digitize and mount an online exhibit.

Chicago Ridge Chicago Ridge Public Library

$6,750.00

"Chicago Ridge Online History Collection: A Digital Bridge to the Past" is designed to digitally preserve and make available online items of local historical significance. Digitizing the library's local history collection, which is rich in administrative history, home and building history and information about founding village families, will encourage recollection, curiosity, and research. Targeted at students, senior citizens, and community residents, this project will also benefit genealogists, historians, and the general public. The project will be available on the library's website and through the Illinois Digital Archives. It will be promoted to Illinois citizens, schools and genealogical societies.

DeKalb Northern Illinois University

$20,250.00

This project will digitize materials pertaining to the history of DeKalb County as well as selected other resources shedding light on the additional counties from which the center collects materials.

East Peoria Alliance Library System

$20,000.00

digitized: an old settlers claim book for the area and a poll book page from 1844 that contains the name of a famous elector, Abraham Lincoln.

Towanda

Towanda District Library

$19,141.00

The Towanda Area Historical Society is collecting photographs, oral and text histories, and assorted items from our community's citizens. The Towanda District Library will utilize this source of historical materials, scan what is not currently accessible on existing websites, and make these resources available to anyone with Internet access. Grant funds will be used to: scan and process materials for digitalization, contract a web designer to create a database-driven website, and contract a cataloger to index all digitalized materials.

Urbana

The Board of Trustees of the University of Illinois

$20,000.00

The University of Illinois Library will contract the scanning, image processing, and metadata collection of one decade of the Courier. The Champaign County Archives will assist in publicizing the availability of this resource and promoting its use.

Wauconda

Lake County Discovery Museum

$19,975.00

The Lake County Discovery Museum will digitize Civil War era materials kept by the Minto family of Loon Lake (Milburn) in Lake County, Illinois. This grant will allow for the digitization of 142 letters written by the Minto family and neighbors, 25 family diaries and 70 photographs. This collection is unique in that it contains both letters written by soldiers to family members and letters to the soldiers from brothers, sisters, parents, and friends. It is unusual for letters written to soldiers to have survived because soldiers had to "travel light" and the letters were usually discarded.

Developing A Statewide Technology Toolkit

The Illinois regional library systems will take the lead and together work with teams of pilot project libraries to introduce new technologies into Illinois libraries. These teams will create templates that can be replicated statewide, and develop standard policies that can be duplicated by any library in Illinois.

The following three projects were awarded funding for a total of $270,000 with the desired outcomes that:

- Every Illinois library will have the ability to meet the needs of their technologically savvy library users.
- Other states will model Illinois as the leader for employing the latest technologies to offer library services.

ChampaignLincoln Trail Libraries System

$110,000.00

Lincoln Trail Libraries System, in cooperation with the eight other regional multi-type Library Systems, will research and develop a project called "A 21st Century Public Access Catalog". This will result in a statewide online catalog with the functionality of a local online catalog (local searching, placing requests, creating book lists, etc.), but includes the holdings of all Illinois libraries, thereby providing patrons with a more comprehensive searching tool.

DecaturRolling Prairie Library System

$80,000.00

The Rolling Prairie Library System in partnership with the other eight multi-type Regional Library Systems is actively researching and considering a full range of options in order to develop "An Illinet Communication and Collaboration Toolkit". A variety of communication tools, such as blogs and RSS, are identified and evaluated by a team of system consultants and technology staff of member libraries. Documentation (training materials, best practices and policies) is developed for the easiest and most effective tools identified. The toolkit is deployed to all Illinois libraries in the second year of this project.

WheelingNorth Suburban Library System

$80,000.00

The Illinois Library System Director's Organization (ILSDO), comprised of nine multi-type regional library systems, is developing the Libraries as 21st Century Technology Leaders project, assisting libraries in the assessment and planning of their preparedness for a 21st century population. The North Suburban Library System (NLSLS) will use funds for a statewide research study to identify and share the best practices of academic, public, and school libraries which have embraced and integrated new technologies into their library services.

Demonstration of Public Library Services

Demonstration of Public Library Services is intended to show the value of public library services to Illinois residents currently residing outside of a taxed library service area. The libraries were encouraged to explore innovative methods of providing services that address the information needs of Illinois citizens currently without access to a public library.

The following six projects were awarded funding for a total of $159,170 with the desired outcomes that:

- Illinois citizens recognize the library and librarians as vital resources in the community.

Bridging the Gap Between Community and Collection

The Bridging the Gap Between Community and Collection grant offering is designed to assist libraries in 1) identifying an unmet need within the target audience; 2) developing a non-fiction subject area that will be directed at meeting that need; and 3) designing an activity to promote the new materials to the target audience. This grant is intended to “bridge the gap” between the needs of a specific audience within the library’s community and the library’s non-fiction materials collection.

The following 326 projects were awarded funding for a total of $947,770 with the desired outcomes that:

- Library collections support community needs and interests.
- Previously un-served or under-served library patrons have increased access to specific library materials and programs.
- Statewide resource sharing is enhanced.
