Attorneys General

Under the 1818 Illinois Constitution, the Attorney General was appointed by the General Assembly. The 1848 Constitution mentioned the Attorney General only as an officer ineligible to be elected as a member of the General Assembly. An act creating the office was approved Feb. 27, 1867, when Gov. Oglesby appointed Ingersoll. Under the 1870 Constitution, the Attorney General became a constitutional officer.

Auditors of Public Accounts

Under the 1818 Illinois Constitution, the Auditor of Public Accounts was appointed by the General Assembly for a four-year term. In 1833, the term was reduced to two years, and under the 1848 Constitution, the office became a popularly elected one with elected officials serving four-year terms. The Office of the Auditor of Public Accounts was dissolved under the 1970 Constitution, and in 1973 the newly created Comptroller became keeper of the state's fiscal accounts.

Justices of the Illinois Supreme Court

Under the 1818 Illinois Constitution, Justices of the Illinois Supreme Court were appointed by the General Assembly. Four justices were appointed in 1818, and five new seats were created in 1841. The 1848 Constitution reduced the size of the court to three and provided for popular election of one justice from each of the state's three grand divisions. The 1870 Constitution expanded the court to seven while retaining popular election.

Clerks of the Supreme Court

Before adoption of the 1848 Illinois Constitution, the Clerk of the Illinois Supreme Court was appointed by the court. The record as to dates of appointment is somewhat obscure prior to 1848. From 1848 to 1902, one clerk was elected in each of the Three Grand Divisions. Those three divisions were consolidated into one by the Act of 1897, which provided that one clerk be elected in 1902 and every six years thereafter. The 1970 Constitution provided that this office become appointive in 1975.
